Leading sectors in Morocco are infrastructure, social housing, agriculture (in the frame of the project Maroc Vert, financed also by the African Development Bank) and fishing (Programme Halieutis).

The Government has also made the development of green energies its top priority in order to reduce the country’s dependence on energy imports. It is committed to achieving a production capacity of 6,000 MW by 2020 increasing the proportion of renewable energies. To develop this potential the Kingdom launched with the support of UNDP and of the Global Environmental Facility of the World Bank several programmes like: Solar Energy, Wind / Hydro and Rural Electrification Programmes.

Important challenges are the management of several projects linked with: energy efficiency; water management (in rural and urban supply, in agriculture modern irrigation systems, in tourism water efficient devices, protection of water resources); waste management (sustainable demographic and industrial growth, protection of the environment, household waste management); public transportation (improvement of urban transport services and infrastructure, environmental and social sustainability).

The renewable energies and energy efficiency market in Morocco is expanding, thus providing more opportunities for national and international companies operating in the sector.
