MYANMAR

Myanmar (former Burma) is a geographically and ethnically diverse country bordered by Bangladesh, India, China, Laos and Thailand. Its largest city Yangon (Rangoon), located in the south of the country, is Myanmar's economic and cultural hub.

Being one of the fastest growing economies in the world, Myanmar today finds itself in rapid transition that holds promising business opportunities in sectors such as agriculture, energy, garments, infrastructure, communications or banking and finance.

ECONOMY

Myanmar's exports are dominated by its garment industry, fisheries products and rice. In addition, the country is rich in natural resources. The manufacturing industry enjoys increasing flows of foreign direct investment and the construction sector is booming as the government encourages investments in infrastructure and property development, in particular in Yangon, Mandalay and Special Economic Zones.

Tourist arrivals have also risen since the initiation of the reform process, with numbers exceeding 4.6 million visitors in 2015. It is expected that reforms will lead to a further rise in investment as well as an improved business environment in the coming years.
